

About your data

We understand privacy is very important and want to respect that. To keep things simple, we do not collect any data on any user and do not require account creation beyond having an Apple ID. Location and photo library permission may be requested, but nothing is processed or collected from that information and users have the option to deny these requests. In iCloud enabled apps, data is optionally synced through Apple's CloudKit private database service and their privacy policy can be found here. In CloudKit, data is encrypted during transit and at rest on your devices. If any questions arise, please contact eli@elihartnett.com
